TO THE PARENTS AND FRIENDS, AND, IN HONOR OF THOSE BRAVE AND NOBLE MEN OF THE 119TH INFANTRY, OF WHOM IT CAN TRULY BE SAID THAT THEY PERFORMED THEIR DUTY HONORABLY AND GLORIOUSLY.

This History of the 119th Infantry, 60th Brigade, 30th Division, U. S. A., was compiled by Captain C. B. Conway, of Danville, Va., and Lieutenant George A. Shuford, of Asheville, N. C. It was their effort to write only of FACTS, that the records of the deeds of true and brave men may be given. To them is due the thanks and appreciation of the officers and men of the Regiment.

Due to the loss of the list of the officers and the fact that a full and complete list cannot be published, the names of officers are not made a part of this record.

It is fitting to call attention to Major John Hall Manning, who as Operations Officer, rendered most excellent service; Major William S. Privott, Major Graham K. Hobbs, Major Robert S. Lamb and Captain Otho Robinson, who as Battalion Commanders, showed courage and ability of marked degree in fighting and caring for their commands in battle and at other times. Captain Jere Cooper, as Regimental Adjutant, and Captain Fred L. Black, as Supply Officer, were most efficient.—JOHN VANB. METTS.

ORGANIZATION OF 119th INFANTRY.

The 2nd North Carolina Infantry which went into Federal service June 16th, 1916, and spent six months on the Mexican Border was never mustered out upon its return, but proceeded to Camp Sevier, Greenville, South Carolina, August 1st, 1917. When the 30th Division was organized about Sept. 19th, 1917, the 2nd North Carolina Infantry was designated the 119th Infantry and assigned to the 60th Brigade.

A short while afterwards, the 59th Depot Brigade at Camp Sevier was broken up and the majority of the personnel of A, B, C, D, H, I, K, and L Companies of the 2nd Tennessee Infantry was absorbed into the 119th Infantry.

Later about 800 men (North Carolinians) were transferred from Camp Jackson, S. C., to the Regiment; and about 700 men were transferred from Camp Dodge and Camp Gordon and assigned to the 119th Infantry.

On or about September 5th, 1917, several Reserve Officers were transferred from Camp Lee, Va., to the 30th Division which was then under organization, and a number of these attached to the 2nd North Carolina Infantry. Some of these officers were later transferred to other Divisions, but those remaining in the Regiment were permanently assigned.

The personnel of the 119th Infantry, at the time it was ordered to France was as follows:

About 1800 men from the State of North Carolina, 900 from Illinois, and 700 from the States of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

TRAINING OF REGIMENT AT CAMP SEVIER, SOUTH CAROLINA.

Upon the completion of organization of the 119th Infantry, the Regiment underwent a most strenuous training preparatory to its final training received in France. A system of trenches was constructed by the 105th Engineers and these used extensively by the Regiment, in order that the men might become somewhat familiar with trench life.

and their tactical use. A large target range was also constructed and on this the men were trained in the art of shooting accurately and rapidly, in order that they might protect their own lines in time to come. In the late fall of 1917, several British and French Instructors were attached to the 30th Division, and a few of these were sent to the 119th Infantry, who gave valuable instructions resulting from their own personal experience in France.

These instructors were specialists in their work, and this Regiment was fortunate in getting one for each branch of its training, namely: musketry and bayonet, gas defense, grenades, sniping and observation, stokes mortar, one pounder, and signal work. Beginning at about the 1st of January, 1918, detachments of officers from the 30th Division were sent each month to the School of Arms, at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and the training for the officers continued until the Regiment was ready to depart for Overseas service.

Between January 1st, 1918, and April 1st, 1918, the Regimental Commander was in attendance at a Brigade and Field Officers' School at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. During his absence the Regiment was commanded by Col. F. LeJ. Parker, of the Regular Army, and his work for these three months greatly assisted in the building of the backbone of the Regiment. Many competitive drills and exercises were held during this time which assisted in establishing a keen spirit of competition, which the Regiment lived up to in later months.

Upon the return of Col. J. Van B. Metts from the School at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, he resumed command of the Regiment and carried on the training until the 30th Division was ordered to France.

ADVANCE SCHOOL DETACHMENT.

Previous to the embarkation of the 119th Infantry, orders were received to detail twelve (12) officers and several non-commissioned officers to be sent to France as an Advance School Detachment. The following officers were detailed:

MAJOR GEORGE K. FREEMAN,
MAJOR ROANE WARING,
CAPTAIN GRAHAM K. HOBBS,
1ST. LIEUT. CHARLES PICHETTI,
1ST. LIEUT. FRANK J. GILLIAM,
1ST. LIEUT. EDWARD L. GRAHAM,
1ST. LIEUT. CHESTER O. BELL,
1ST. LIEUT. GEORGE A. SHUFORD,
2ND. LIEUT. HOLCOMB ROGERS,
2ND. LIEUT. HARGROVE BELLAMY,
2ND. LIEUT. MARION R. WENTZ,
2ND. LIEUT. JAMES E. FAISON.

This Advance School Detachment, under the command of Major George K. Freeman, joined the general detachment of the 30th Division, which left Camp Sevier, April 30th, 1918, at 2:00 p. m., on a special train of the Southern Railroad. This detachment went direct to Camp Merritt, N. J., via Charlotte, Washington, Philadelphia, and Jersey City, arriving at Camp Merritt about mid-night of May 1st, 1918. While at this camp the N. C. O.'s were equipped for foreign service. On the morning of May 7th, 1918, the detachment boarded a train which carried the party to Hoboken, N. J., where it filed on board the transport George Washington, a converted German liner. Shortly after noon on May 8th, 1918, this liner slipped out of New York Harbor and started on its long journey to France. The convoy consisted of three (3) converted German vessels, the George Washington, the America and the DeKalb, formerly the Cruiser Crown Prince Eitel Frederick. The voyage was uneventful with the exception of one day spent in target practice. About 7:30 a. m., May 17th, 1918, seven (7) American Submarine Destroyers joined the convoy to see it safely into port. On the last day out at sea just at sunrise a submarine was sighted off the starboard side of the DeKalb. It at once submerged without firing. At 11:30 a. m., May 18th, 1918, the George Washington dropped anchor in the harbor of Brest, France. The Advance School Detachment debarked the following day, and marched to the Pantinzer Barracks, about 4 kilometers from Brest. On May 23rd, 1918, the party left Brest for Langres and arrived there May 25th, 1918. The entire detachment was here separated into different groups and commenced special training for which they were sent over. Some officers attended the School of the Line, the remainder the Specialist School. Upon the completion of the course the officers taking the Specialist and Line courses left Langres June 24th, 1918, and rejoined the Regiment which was stationed in the Racques Area, at Louches, on June 27th, 1918. Major George K. Freeman and Major Roane Waring were transferred from the School of the Line to the Staff College before the completion of the course. These two officers were not reassigned to the Regiment.

EMBARKATION OF REGIMENT FOR OVER-SEAS SERVICE.

Upon leaving the Training Camp at Sevier, S. C., the Regiment proceeded by special trains to Camp Merritt, N. J. Some of these trains moving over the P. & N. Railroad to Greenwood, S. C., and Seaboard from there to Richmond, Va., then to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Jersey City, N. J. Other trains moving over Southern to Charlotte, Danville, Richmond, etc. The entire Regiment was assembled at Camp Merritt, N. J., on the 8th of May, 1918, and remained there for a period of three days, being equipped for Over-Seas Service. While there, the organization was split up into three different detachments; one remaining there, one ordered to Philadelphia, and the other ordered to Boston.

Early on the morning of May 11th, Regimental Headquarters, Headquarters Company, Machine Gun Company, Supply Company, and Companies A, B, and C, under general command of Col. J. Van B. Metts. Companies A, B, and C, of the 1st Battalion and Battalion Headquarters, under command of Captain Otho Robinson, left Camp Merritt and proceeded by rail to the docks at Hoboken, N. J., arriving there about 9:30 a. m. No time was lost in transferring the troops to a large steamer, and in a few minutes landed on one of the large piers at New York used by Troop Transports. The detachment embarked the same afternoon about 4:30, on the British Steamship "Ascania", owned and operated by the Cunard Line.

The 2nd Battalion, consisting of Battalion Headquarters, Companies E, F, G, and H, under command of Captain Edgar H. Bain, left Camp Merritt, May 10th, and proceeded by rail to Philadelphia, Pa., arriving on the morning of the 11th. From the train the troops marched immediately to the docks, and at 2:00 p. m., embarked on the British Steamship "Haverford".

The third detachment, consisting of the 3rd Battalion Headquarters, Companies D, I, K, L, and M, under command of Major William S. Privott, left Camp Merritt, May 10th, and proceeded by rail to Boston, Mass., arriving there about 10:00 a. m., the 11th, and embarked that afternoon on the British Steamship "Laomadon".

VOYAGE.

The three British Transports, "Ascania", "Haverford" and "Laomadon" on departure from their respective ports made a direct sail for the coast of Canada, and on Wednesday, May 15th, saw each other in the Harbor at Halifax, Nova Scotia.

While in this harbor the convoy was formed, consisting of these three Transports and nine others. On the afternoon of May 16th, the convoy sailed for England. The "Ascania" was the flag-ship, and carried the Commodore of the convoy—Lieut. Commander Underwood, of the British Navy. The convoy was escorted by the British Cruiser "Cornwall".

Between the 17th and 21st the ocean was rather rough at times caused by heavy wind, but on the morning of the 22nd it was very calm, everyone was feeling better and in the best of spirits.

Friday, May 24th, the convoy reached the "danger zone", and at this time numerous "abandon ship drills" were being held. At daylight of the 25th several United States Submarine Destroyers were seen chasing all around our convoy, and remained as our best friends until the convoy landed.

About 11:30 p. m., May 26th, a German submarine was sighted within very close range, but it immediately submerged and was not seen again. The crafty Destroyers were on their job and dropped several "depth bombs" at the spot where the submarine had been seen. No disorder or confusion among the troops was caused during these crucial moments.

About 9:30 a. m., May 27th, 1918, the convoy filed through the Irish Sea and in a few minutes docked at Liverpool, England. All troops remained on board until 5:00 o'clock that afternoon when the Regiment debarked, and marched a short distance to the train which left at 10:00 p. m., for Dover, England's chief Channel Port for the exportation of troops. The train passed through London about midnight and arrived at Dover about 8:00 o'clock on the morning of the 28th.

Beginning at 11:00 a. m., on the same date, the Regiment moved by small detachments from Dover, England, across the English Channel to Calais, France, and by the afternoon of May 29th the entire Regiment was once more assembled in camp, located about one and one-half kilometers from Calais.

The Regiment remained in this camp for three days being equipped with gas respirators and ammunition. Here the United States rifles were exchanged for British rifles, as the 30th Division had been designated to serve with the British.

The night of arrival in this camp the Regiment experienced their first attack by the enemy in the form of an "air raid". In spite of the heaviness and nearness of the explosions, and the whining of the bomb fragments, the behavior of the troops in their first actual contact with the enemy was most excellent.

May 31st the organization moved by rail to Audrique,

France, detrained there and marched to the Racques Area where the Regiment was billeted in the following towns:

Regimental Headquarters, Headquarters Company, detachments of Supply Company and the 1st Battalion at Louches; 2nd Battalion and detachment of Supply Company at Landretheun; 3rd Battalion and detachment of Supply Company at Yeuse; Machine Gun Company at Nordt Ludlingham and Supply Company at Lostrat.

TRAINING PERIOD OVER-SEAS.

In this area the Regiment underwent a most intensive training schedule. Since it was to be affiliated with the British, their methods, the development of four years of painstaking study, was adopted. The 39th British Division, which was associated with the 30th (American) Division arranged to give assistance in training in an advisory capacity, by the attachment of British officers and N. C. O.'s to American units, and by the maintenance of close personal touch, also by the interchange of Staff Officers between the Staffs of the British formation and the corresponding Staffs of the 30th Division. The 119th Infantry was very fortunate in receiving a cadre of instructors from the 9th Black Watch and the 9th and 10th Gordon Highlanders, under the command of Brig. Gen. N. S. Hubbard, 118th Infantry Brigade (British) and under the direct supervision of Col. Cruickshenk, Lt.-Col. Swarder, Lt.-Col. Lord Gordon and Lt.-Col. Anderson. The training was divided into two phases, i. e.: A and B. While in this area, phase A was mastered. This training consisted of 36 hours of instruction for the first week, 25 hours for the second week, 26 hours for the third week, and 20 hours for the fourth week. Realizing that every minute must be taken advantage of, the men worked most industriously, with a spirit at which our Allies marvelled. The training of specialists received the most careful attention, as did the training of the Infantry platoons. It was due, in a great way, to this thorough training that the later phenomenal success of the Regiment in actual battle is attributed. Time was also given to March Discipline and Trench Warfare.

As another means of taking advantage of the experience gained by the British, officers and non-commissioned officers were sent to various schools to acquire technical knowledge of Automatic Rifles, Bayonet Fighting, Grenades, Gas Defense, etc. It is well to know that the average standard set at these schools by the 119th Infantry officers and N. C. O.'s was exceptionally high. Also, officers and N. C. O.'s were sent to the School Sector directly east of Ypres for practical experience under actual battle conditions before receiving the responsibility of leading their men under enemy fire. They were most courteously received by the units of the 49th British Division, occupying the line and were given valuable information and instruction while there. Some of these officers and N. C. O.'s were permitted to go on patrol, but chiefly they acquainted themselves with trench life and warfare.

The Machine Gun Company with the Machine Gun Companies of all the Regiments in the Division, were assembled at Nordt Ludlingham, where they were instructed in the latest methods of Machine Gun Warfare which the British had found so successful.

While in this area authority was received from G. H. Q., for the enlargement of the Regimental Staff by the allowance of an Operation and Intelligence Officer. To fill this very important office, Captain, now Major John Hall Manning, then the Regimental Adjutant, was appointed. Lieut. Jere Cooper was promoted to the rank of Captain and transferred to Regimental Headquarters as Adjutant. Captain Benjamin West on June 4th was also transferred to Regimental Headquarters as Personnel Adjutant. Upon the completion of the above changes, the Regimental Staff consisted of:

COL. J. VAN B. METTS,
LIEUT.-COL. CYRUS M. FAIRCLOTH,
CAPT. JOHN HALL MANNING,
CAPT. BENJAMIN WEST,
CAPT. JERE COOPER,
CAPT. ARMSTEAD K. TAYLOE,
CHAPLAIN JOHN M. ROBESON.

The 119th Infantry Regiment was inspected almost immediately upon its arrival in this area by Major Gen. Herbert Plummer, Commander of the 2nd British Army. A week later Field Marshall Sir Douglas Haig, Commander of the British Armies in France, honored this Regiment by giving it a most rigid inspection. Both of these officers expressed great delight in the progress of the training and the wonderful physique of the men. On or about the 30th day of June, Gen. John J. Pershing, Commander in Chief of the American Armies in France, inspected the Regiment. He was pleased with the fitness of the troops and especially the high standard of the personnel, expressing himself that he had not seen a better body of men in the American Expeditionary Forces.

About the 15th of June, information was received that an attack by the Germans was anticipated in the sector immediately east of Cassel. In anticipation of this plan of attack arrangements were perfected whereby the 30th Division was to take up a position in reserve, west of Cassel. The 119th Infantry was designated to be the Divisional Reserve which, as expressed to the Commanding Officer by Gen. Faison, was a very important position in the scheme of defense. The Regiment was preparing for this move with great enthusiasm. This position, however, was never occupied. The orders were unexpectedly changed and this Regiment with the other units of the Division, on the 2nd day of July, 1918, proceeded by marching to the Roozendaal and Road Camp Areas, near Watou, Belgium.

The Regiment formed on the Zaufques-Louches-Yeuse Road with the head of the column at the road intersection 3A, 39, British Map Hazebrouk, at 9:45 a. m., in the following order: Headquarters Company, Detachment Supply Company, 1st Battalion, 3rd Battalion, and 2nd Battalion. The Sanitary Detachments accompanied their respective Battalions. The First and Second Line Transports followed their respective Battalions in the following order: Rolling Kitchens, G. S. Wagons (Ration), G. S. Wagons (Baggage), Water Carts, Limbers. The following disposition of equipment was made: 120 rounds of service S. A. A., one cooked meal and full field equipment, including two blankets, less overcoats, which were carried on the wagons, were carried by each man. With this equipment and in the above order the 119th Infantry marched to the Forêt D'Eperlecques, a distance of 12 kilometers, where they bivouaced the night of July 2-3, 1918. On the morning of July 3rd, the Regiment marched to Rubrouck, forming at 6:15 a. m., on the Watten-Welverdinghe-Voikermakhove-Herzeele Road in the following order: Headquarters Company, Detachment Supply Company, 3rd Battalion, 2nd Battalion, 1st Battalion, Sanitary Troops with their respective Battalions, where it bivouacked the night of July 3-4, 1918, in a pasture. The distance marched was about the same as on the day before. On July 4th, 1918, contrary to expectations, the Regiment again formed on the Bollezeele-Rubrouck Road in the following order: Headquarters Company, Detachment Supply Company, 2nd Battalion, 1st Battalion and 3rd Battalion, with Sanitary Troops with their respective Battalions at 7:20 a. m., and marched to Herzeele, where it bivouacked for the night of July 4-5, 1918. Here it was that the men of this Regiment first heard distinctly the firing of guns on the famous Flanders front. It was the subject of much discussion especially since it was the birthday of the Independence of America. On the morning of July 5, 1918, at 6:00 a. m., the Regiment formed on the Herzeele-Watou Road, to march to the Roosendall and Road Camp Areas in the order of march as of the first day. It reached its destination shortly after noon and went into camp two kilometers southeast of Watou, Belgium. It is quite interesting to note that this Regiment was the first American unit to enter Belgium. Regimental Headquarters and Headquarters Company were located at Bayley Camp, 1st Battalion was located just across the road, 2nd Battalion at Gabb Camp, 3rd Battalion at Chase Camp, and the Machine Gun Company in a pasture only a short distance away. The Supply Company, less the detachments which were attached to the different Battalions formed the Sixtieth Brigade Dump and was located at Dragon Camp.

It must be understood that the Supply Company of this Regiment and the Supply Company of the 120th Infantry Regiment were consolidated forming the Sixtieth Brigade Dump, each Battalion was then allotted a detachment under the command of a Battalion Supply Officer. It was the duty of the Brigade Dump to issue rations and equipment for a Battalion directly to the respective Battalion Supply Officer, who in turn issued the same directly to the Company of their Battalion. Also in this detachment was included a Battalion Transport Officer who had direct charge of the Battalion Transport. The feeding of the men in the line was entirely in the hands of these two officers, for as soon as the Brigade Dump had turned over the food to the Battalion Supply Officer he was relieved of further responsibility. Then the Transport Officer after the rations had been prepared for consumption collected them and loaded them on the transports, carrying it forward to the men in the trenches. This Regiment was fortunate in having conscientious and fearless officers to fill these important positions and they deserve the highest praise for the manner in which they performed their duties. This method of supply was continued throughout the operations of the Regiment.

After resting up from the four-day march, the Regiment resumed the training schedule with renewed energy. The front line at its closest point was about 12 kilometers distance, consequently the firing of artillery could be heard at all times, and even the bursting of shells, for on several occasions the town of Watou, where Division Headquarters was located was shelled. The shells passing directly over the Camp. Here also the men of the Regiment became thoroughly accustomed to enemy air raids. Practically every clear night there were numbers of German planes overhead bombing important cross-roads and camps. The transports carrying rations forward to the men in the line also presented a favorite target.

It was while stationed in this area that Major Gen. Pinny, of the British Army, addressed the officers and non-commissioned officers of the Regiment. He was very enthusiastic on the condition of the men, especially the standard of morale, which was extraordinarily high. There was one remark in his speech which clearly bespoke the conditions and thinking of our gallant allies before our arrival. Gen. Pinny said in substance: "An attack by the enemy is anticipated and in all probability his advance will be on this front. It is my sincere hope that he attacks while you are here." The attack never materialized.

To better understand the subsequent work of the Regiment it is here necessary to explain somewhat in detail the former training which was conducted under the heading of Phase B training. This consisted of one Battalion at a time going into the line and being associated with the British units then occupying the position and also to strengthen the line as it was very lightly held. The command and the responsibility for this sector was retained by the British while the Americans were given every opportunity to accustom themselves with trench life and conditions. This method of training was to continue until the entire outfit had been able to take advantage of the opportunity. Phase B training was commenced in the Regiment by the following order, July 16, 1918:

J. VAN B. METTS,
Colonel, 119th Infantry.

In compliance with the above order the 1st Battalion under command of Capt. Otho Robinson, moved to the Blue Line (reserve position east of Poperinghe) on the night of July 15th, 1918. Company "A" occupied the right front and right support with two (2) platoons in the front line position and two in support. Company "C" occupied exactly the same relative position on the left. Company "D" was held in reserve. On the night of July 16-17 the Battalion moved to the front line position in the right sub-sector of the Canal sector in the Ypres salient. The disposition of troops in the sector were as follows: "A" Company occupied the front line in conjunction with "C" and "B" Companies of the Argyle and Southern Highlanders with their right resting on Kruisstraathock-Voormezeel Road. To the right of "A" Company and occupying the front line "D" Company was stationed with two platoons in the front line and two in close support with the Queens Royal Rifles. "C" Company occupied support positions, "B" Company received orders to return to Louches, France, by rail to complete its course on the target range.

On the same night the 2nd Battalion under command of Capt. Graham Hobbs, took over the position formerly occupied by the 1st Battalion in the Blue Line.

For the first six days that this Battalion was in the line it held the position with the British, first by having one English soldier stationed with one American. After confidence was thus gained the separate units were grouped together and a British platoon was placed on either side of an American platoon. On the 23rd day of July, after the Battalion had been in line for a period of six days the British withdrew to the Yellow Line or the Regimental Reserve Line and the 1st Battalion held the front line position alone until relieved by the 2nd Battalion on the night of July 24-25, 1918.

This sector was known as a quiet one and especially suitable for the instruction of new troops but at this particular time it was quite the contrary. As has been stated, an attack was anticipated, so the British artillery was exceptionally active firing on all points where troop movements had been noticed and on important roads and crossings. The artillery's activity on our part consequently called for retaliation from the enemy which made the sector one of the hottest on the front. Due to this very heavy shelling the casualties numbered more than was expected.

The 2nd Battalion was disposed of as follows: "F" Company occupied the right front sector with two platoons in the front line and two platoons in close support. "E" Company with four platoons occupied the front line on the left sector. "G" Company with four platoons in close support. "H" Company in reserve. "F" and "H" Companies were with the Queen's Royal Rifles, while "E" and "G" Companies were with the 5th Scotch Rifles. During the period of occupation there were a few changes made in this disposition by means of inter-Battalion reliefs. The training was the same as stated for the 1st Battalion.

The 3rd Battalion occupied the Blue Line during the period that the 2nd Battalion was in the forward position then relieved the 2nd Battalion in the Canal sector on the night of August 1-2, 1918. A detachment from the Signal Platoon from Headquarters Company under command of 1st Lieut. Nathaniel Hannau, accompanied the Battalion into line.

The Machine Gun Company was under control of the 33rd British Division and received practical instructions in the same manner as did the line companies of the Regiment.

While the 3rd Battalion was occupying the front line position, the 1st Battalion held the reserve trench or Blue Line going in on the night of August 1-2, and remaining until it was withdrawn Sunday morning, August 10th, 1918.

With the withdrawal from the line of this Battalion Phase B of the scheme of instruction was completed for this Regiment and it was now deemed capable of taking over and occupying a place in the firing line alone.

From the 10th of August, 1918, until the 15th day of August, 1918, the Regiment trained around Watou in a great way correcting errors which had been noted during the tour in line. On the 15th day of August, the Commanding Officer of the Regiment received orders that the Regiment should proceed that night and occupy the Blue Line in the Canal sector, which it did. Regimental Headquarters was established at the Elizabeth Chateau on the eastern edge of the town of Poperinghe.

By Order of COLONEL METTS,

JOHN H. MANNING,

Captain O. and I. O.

OCCUPATION AND OPERATIONS IN CANAL SECTOR UP TO, AND INCLUDING SEPTEMBER 4th, 1918.

The Canal sector was the general line extending from immediately southeast of Ypres, about two miles southwest to Elzenwalla, inclusive, on both sides of the Ypres-Commines Canal and the country on this immediate front was very low and wet, thus causing many hardships upon the troops occupying it. To the right of the Canal sector stood Mount Kemmel, from the top of which the Germans had a dominating view of the entire sector, thus causing camouflaged screens to be erected on all main roads leading towards the front, and making it very difficult to move about during the day. On the left of this sector was the remains of Ypres, after the great battle the British fought in July, 1916, when the Germans used gas for the first time.

The subdivisions of the Canal sector, such as support, reserve, etc., were represented by different lines of trenches as follows:

The actual front line was known as G. H. Q. 1, and the second in close support as G. H. Q. 2 line. Support position was the Brown Line, and the reserve Yellow and Green Lines.

This front when taken over by the 30th American Division was occupied by the 33rd British Division, and the 89th British Brigade under the command of Brigadier General Baird, was holding the front line. This Brigade consisted of three battalions as follows:

2nd Argyle and Southern Highlanders.
4th Kings' Royal Rifles,
1st Middlesex.

On August 15th, 1918, the following order was issued from Headquarters 119th Infantry:

The following morning, August 16th, orders were issued for moving the 3rd Battalion, 119th Infantry Regiment from the Green Line to the right sub-sector of the Yellow Line.

Upon moving into the front line on night of August 16-17, the 119th Infantry Regiment took over from the 98th British Brigade in the following order:

The 1st Battalion, commanded by Capt. Otho Robinson, occupied the right Regimental front. Company "A" relieving two companies of the Argyle and Southern Highlanders in the front line and Company "B", relieving two companies of the Argyle and Southern Highlanders in close support. One platoon of Company "B" occupied a small trench in Scottish Woods, acting as a counter-attack platoon. Companies "C" and "D" occupied support trenches in the Brown Line near Smythe Farm, relieving two companies of the 1st Middlesex.

The 2nd Battalion, commanded by Capt. Graham K. Hobbs, occupied the left Regimental front. Company "H" relieving two companies of the 4th Kings in the front line and two isolated trenches on the left front, about 200 yards from the main trench line. Company "F" taking over from two companies of the 4th Kings in the G. H. Q. 2 line as a close support. Companies "E" and "G" occupied support trenches in the Brown Line near Assam Farm.

Machine Gun Company upon orders from British Battalion M. G. O., moved its headquarters to Smythe Farm with that of Company "D", 1st Battalion. Practically all of the Gun positions of the M. G. Co., were in the G. H. Q. 2 line.

Stokes Mortar and one pounder platoons were located in the Ravine. 1st and 2nd Battalion Headquarters were located between Belgian Chateau and Segard Wood. Regimental Headquarters was located at Assam Farm.

When the 30th Division left the States for Overseas service the Divisional Artillery was left behind and did not come over until about one month later. Upon its arrival in France, it was assigned to duty with the 33rd American Division in the Verdun sector.

When the 33rd British Division was relieved on August 16-17, the 98th British Artillery Brigade, commanded by Colonel Butler, remained in the line supporting the right sub-sector until about August 25th, when it was relieved by the — British Artillery Brigade, commanded by Colonel Ladd, with headquarters at Assam Farm and was still in the line when the 30th Division was relieved.

On the night of August 21-22, 1918, the 3rd Battalion, commanded by Major William S. Privott, which was then in the Yellow Line relieved the 1st Battalion, 119th Infantry Regiment, then in right Regimental front. The 1st Battalion upon being relieved withdrew to the same position vacated by the 3rd Battalion. The disposition of the 3rd Battalion was as follows:

Company "M" took over right Regimental front. Company "K" had one platoon in Scottish Wood with the remainder of the Company in the Domino Trench and the Ravine. Company "L" in the Brown Line near Ottawa Farm. Company "I" in the Brown Line near Smythe Farm.

On the night of the 22-23 of August, the Machine Gun Company was relieved by Company "B", 115th Machine Gun Battalion. Upon the completion of the relief, the Machine Gun Company of 119th Infantry Regiment, proceeded to Chinese Camp.

Following is the defense scheme of the right sub-sector occupied by the 119th Infantry Regiment (American):

The Rear Battalion will, with one (1) Battalion of the 120th Infantry Regiment, constitute the Brigade Reserve.

Right Battalion Headquarters will move to:

Left Battalion Headquarters will move to:

7. POLICY OF DEFENSE:

(1) Defense of Sector will be active. "No Man's Land" will be patrolled constantly with the object of:

(a) Maintaining superiority over enemy patrols and thereby insuring control of "No Man's Land."

(b) Locating hostile forward posts.

(c) Insuring a constant flow of prisoners. This is all important, as prisoners and the consequent identification of hostile units form the surest source of information with regard to the enemy's intentions.

(2) DURING NORMAL PERIODS:

Any incursion of the enemy into our lines will be met by immediate counter-attack by Platoons, or Companies, held in readiness for this purpose. With this object, each Company earmark a Platoon, each Battalion a Company.

These counter-attack units will:

(a) Be in possession of written instruction as to their action in case of attacks.

(b) Carry out a thorough reconnaissance of the area held by the unit or formation to which they belong, and the areas on the immediate flanks of that unit or formation. On the reconnaissance, and a thorough study of the ground to be operated over, the success of the immediate counter-attack will mainly depend.

(3) IN THE EVENT OF A HOSTILE OFFENSIVE ON A LARGE SCALE:

All the ground will be held. There will be no retirement and every position occupied will be fought and held to the last man and last round. There will be no withdrawal except by order to withdraw from the authority who assigned the position to be held.

It is to be clearly understood that the object of the move referred to in paragraph 6-(2) will be:

(a) To lessen the number of casualties which may be expected from the enemy's preliminary bombardment of our forward areas.

(b) To break up his attack and inflict the heaviest losses upon his assaulting troops by the Garrison of Centres of Resistance (which in every case will be held to the last.)

(c) To keep as large a proportion as possible of troops in hand to counter-attack and recover the original line at the earliest moment.

That the move referred to in paragraph 6-(2) is only to be carried out after receipt of orders from Regimental Headquarters to do so.

(4) IN THE EVENT OF ANY CENTRE OF RESISTANCE BEING LOST:

The C. O. of the Battalion concerned will order an immediate counter-attack to be made to recover it.

Schemes for counter-attacking these Centres of Resistance will be prepared beforehand; in no case will the garrison of any Centre of Resistance be used for the purpose of carrying out a counter-attack to recover another one.

The security of the Immediate line will be of primary importance and must be provided for at all times in considering the force to be detailed for counter-attack forward of that line.

Nucleus garrisons of not less than three (3) Platoons each Battalion section will therefor be told off to selected portions of the Intermediate line and these will, on no account, be used to counter-attack forward of this line until relieved by troops sent up from behind.

8. ACTION OF TWO (2) REGIMENTAL RESERVE COMPANIES:

These two (2) Companies will be available:

- (a) To deliver a counter-attack against any portion of the Regimental Front captured by the enemy.
- (b) To hold a defensive flank facing S. W. along the line Opium Farm (H. 21. c. 9. 7.) Vijverhoek (H. 29. a. 2. 3.).
- (c) To hold the Brown line within the Regimental area. All officers of the two (2) Reserve Companies will make themselves thoroughly acquainted with the whole of the Regimental area and areas on the immediate flanks.

In the event of these Companies being ordered to move forward, four (4) Lewis Guns per Company will be left behind as a nucleus garrison of the Brown line and Opium Farm-Vijverhoek Line, unless troops have previously arrived to take over the defense of this line.

The Lewis Gun positions will be carefully selected by the Company Commanders concerned and marked by notice boards as "Primary Lewis Gun Positions".

The positions for the remaining Lewis Guns of the two (2) Companies will also be selected and marked by notice boards.

9. The Support Battalion will be available for any operations in the Brigade area. Officers of this Battalion should thoroughly familiarize themselves with the area by personal reconnaissance.

10. POLICY OF WORK:

The Regiment is responsible for work on all defenses in the sector forward of the Intermediate line. The 105th Engineers will assist in this work.

For the present the working program will be as follows:

- (a) Preparation and construction of Centres of Resistance.
- (b) Improvement of trenches actually occupied by troops and communication trenches. Working parties forward of the Intermediate line will, in event of sudden hostile attack, immediately report to the nearest Infantry Commander and place themselves at his disposal. There will be no movements towards the rear.
11. All officers and N. C. O.'s will familiarize themselves with the location of Company, Battalion and Regimental ammunition dumps. The map co-ordinates of the same will be furnished on separate annexes. The ammunition supply will be maintained at the minimum requirements at all times.
12. Scheme of Defense for T. M. Battery will be arranged by Battery Commander and reported to these Headquarters.
13. Regimental Headquarters will remain at Assam Farm.—H. 22. a. 3, 6.

Capt. 119th Infantry.

On the night of August 26-27, 1918, the 2nd Battalion, 119th Infantry Regiment was relieved by the 1st Battalion, 119th Infantry Regiment, in the left Regimental front. Upon the completion of the relief, the 2nd Battalion withdrew to reserve position vacated by the 1st Battalion. Disposition of the 1st Battalion was as follows:

Company "D" on left of Segard Woods. Company "B" in the Ravine. Company "A" in the Brown Line near Assam Farm.

About the night of 27-28 of August, Company "M" was relieved by Companies "I" and "L", and "M" Company withdrew to Ottawa Farm. Company "I" was occupying the right front of 3rd Battalion with two platoons in G. H. Q. 1 line and the remainder of Company on Anzac Ridge. Company "L" occupied the left front of 3rd Battalion with two platoons in G. H. Q. 1 line, one platoon in Domino Trench and the other platoon in the Ravine. Company "K" was in the Brown Line near Smythe Farm.

Early on the morning of August 31st the Commanding Officer, 119th Infantry received telephonic communication from the Division Commander that the Germans had evacuated, or partly evacuated Mount Kemmel, and that the British had advanced to occupy the evacuated section.

A general retirement of the Germans was now anticipated on this front due to their heavy losses and the rapid advance of the Allies further south. That morning about 9:00 a. m., the Division Commander instructed the Commanding Officer 119th Infantry to push out strong combat patrols over his entire front and gain contact with the enemy. Patrols were sent out about 10:30 a. m., and advanced about 100 yards when stout opposition was met as the enemy machine guns came into operation making it impossible for these patrols to advance much further, until additional aid was received from supporting platoons, establishing a general firing line. After the line had been strengthened the advance began again that afternoon about 6:00 p. m., and continued at intervals throughout the night and the following morning.

During the fighting that day two of our men were captured and five or six killed. Several of the enemy were killed and one captured. From wounds seen on the bodies of the dead Germans there appeared evidence of bayonet fighting and hand-to-hand contact with the enemy.

At 7:30 a. m., on the morning of August 31st, the troops composing the attack of the 119th Infantry Regiment had reached the line Voormezele-Switch in I. 31. 6. and I. 32. A.

Lock 8, inclusive, and thence along existing front line, capturing the town of Voormezele. Upon reaching this point orders were received to consolidate and hold the position gained. Both flanks of the Regiment were exposed and Liaison could not be obtained with the units on the right and left. The 108th Infantry Regiment of the 27th American Division being on the right and the 120th Infantry Regiment on the left. Upon the consolidation of this position one platoon of Company "I" was sent up to protect the right flank of the 3rd Battalion, Companies "K" and "M" moved up to G. H. Q. 1 line. On the night of September 1-2, Companies "E" and "G" of the 2nd Battalion relieved Companies "L" and "I" of the 3rd Battalion in the advance position. Companies "F" and "H" remaining back in reserve.

Company "C" of the 1st Battalion was moved back to the Ravine. Two platoons of Company "B" in close support were moved up and relieved the two platoons of Company "D" on the left half of 1st Battalion in the advance position. Company "B" was now holding the entire front of 1st Battalion. Two platoons of Company "D" withdrew to G. H. Q. 1 line and the other two occupying small trenches between there and the new line.

Two platoons of Machine Gun Company, 119th Infantry Regiment came back in the line August 31st for the attack; one platoon was with the 1st Battalion and one with the 3rd Battalion. The other platoons remained in reserve. (It is well to note here that the 119th Infantry was the first American unit to take over a front line sector in Belgium, the first to make an advance, the first to capture a prisoner and the first to capture a town.)

On August 29th, 1918, orders were issued to the effect that the 118th Infantry Regiment (American) would relieve the 119th Infantry Regiment (American) on night of 31st, August and 1st September. Advance parties were sent to join the 119th Infantry in order that they might become acquainted and familiar with the front which their regiment was ordered to take over in a couple of days. This relief never took place on account of the advance made by the 119th Infantry Regiment and the advance party of the 118th Infantry Regiment rejoined their organization September 1st, 1918.

During the training, occupation and operation in the Canal sector the following number of officers and men were either killed, wounded or captured.

	Killed	Wounded	Died of Wounds	Missing
Officers.....	3	8
Men.....	64	208	12	2

Upon the transfer from the 2nd British Army, the Regiment proceeded by rail to the St. Pol Area, arriving there the morning of September 7th, 1918. Regimental Headquarters and Headquarters Company were located at Maisnel St. Pol. 1st Battalion and Companies "C" and "D" at Neuville au Cornet, Companies "A" and "B" at Monts En Tornois. 2nd Battalion at Buneville. 3rd Battalion at Moncheaux. Machine Gun Company at Tachincourt. Supply Company at Herlin Le Sac.

This Area was located near St. Pol, France, a town of probably 30,000 inhabitants and was known as a rest and training sector. Here, for the first time in two months, the Regiment was out of the Enemy Artillery Range. The men enjoyed the experience. The time there was devoted to recreation, however, training for future work did not suffer. One of the points greatly stressed was the Infantry attack assisted by tanks. An opportunity was given to three companies to engage in assimilated attack with the Tanks while the other companies of the Regiment observed their tactical use. This training though not appreciated at the time, proved of inestimable value in the subsequent operations of the Regiment.

On the 17th day of September, 1918, the Regiment moved by rail pursuant to the following order to the Puchevillere Area:

MOVEMENT TABLE.

Route.—Headauville-Bouzin-court-Albert S. edge of Fri-court-Carnoy Road to Cleary thence to Tincourt Area.

Remarks.—Head of column at trail intersector 300 yds. N. of Headauville. Clear Headauville at 9:30 p. m. Loading completed by 9:00 p. m. Two Motor Ambulances will accompany the column. Debussing point to be designated by the Brigade Commander.

This movement was carried out according to instructions and the Regiment arrived in the Tincourt Area about 6:00 a. m., September 24th, and after a four mile hike was camped in the southern edge of a wood immediately N. W. of Tincourt.

Here the Regiment had reached shell fire again as one could be heard whizzing overhead several times each day and everyone was beginning to realize that they were drawing close to the fighting line every hour on account of the rapidity and secrecy of order and movements.

That afternoon the Regiment moved up a little closer to the line and was distributed in sunken roads, chalk cliffs, etc., throughout the vicinity of Roisel.

Here several Australian Officers and N. C. O.'s were attached to the Regiment, to assist with their advice and aid in any way possible for the coming operations, as they were thoroughly familiar with this sector of the line.

The Regiment remained at Roisel three days, making their final plans for the attack on September 29th, against the Hindenburg Line.

September 26th, the following Regimental Order was issued:

After taking over the line on the night of the 27-28 of September until the morning of the attack, great pains were taken to instruct each individual soldier in his particular duty.

The supporting Artillery which consisted of nine Field Artillery Brigades and five Heavy Artillery Brigades, kept up a continual fire harrassing the enemy and destroying his defense. The Artillery preparation covered a period of 48 hours prior to the attack.

On the night of September 28-29th, the tape was laid by the 105th Engineers. Due to casualties, however, this task was completed by officers of this Regiment. The Tanks which were to assist in the attack were led into position; and the Infantry took their place upon the tape in the following order: 1st Battalion, commanded by Capt. Otho Robinson, with "A" and "D" assaulting Companies and Companies "B" and "C" in close support. 2nd Battalion, commanded by Capt. Graham K. Hobbs, with "F" and "G" assaulting Companies with "E" and "H" in close support. 3rd Battalion, commanded by Major William S. Privott, with the exception of "M" Company, which was broken up into carrying parties, was assigned as "moppers up", to follow the two front line Battalions and clean up all the trenches, dug-outs, and machine gun posts, taken by them. "I" and "L" Companies were to mop up the Tunnel alone. Company "K" assisted in the "mopping up", but was later called upon to protect the left flank of the 2nd Battalion.

The following order was issued governing the attack:

- 1 (a) On a date and hour to be notified later, the Australian Corps with The American II Corps affiliated will attack the enemy's position in the Hindenburg line, in the sector near Nauroygouy.

The 27th Division (American) will attack on the left of the 119th Infantry.

The 120th Infantry will attack on the right of the 119th Infantry.

(b) Boundaries:

Northern Boundary: A. 26. c. 4. 7.—A. 24. a. 0. 2.

Southern Boundary: Line along road (incl.), on Sentinel Ridge to Bellicourt—thence along railway from G. 2. d. 0. 3. crossing Sunken Road at G. 5. d. 9. 7.—thence to objective (G. 6. c. 5. 8.).

Inter-Battalion Boundary: Goat line (incl.), to left Battalion to G. 3. b. 4. 4.—thence to Air Shaft in tunnel (G. 4. a. 5. 8.) (incl.), to left Battalion—thence to A. 28. d. 4. 1.—thence South to Cabaret Wood Farm (incl.), to left Battalion to A. 30. c. 2. 8.

(c) Objective: Line running through A. 23. b. 9. 1.—A. 24. c. 0. 0., A. 30. a. 2. 8.—thence South to G. 6. a. 4. 0. Under no condition will troops of this Regiment go beyond this objective.

2. (a) The 1st Battalion will attack on the right with the 2nd Battalion the left, each Battalion having two companies in the front line, and two (2) companies in close support, each company attacking in two waves of two lines each.

The 3rd Battalion will be in support and will mop-up the area captured between the starting point and the St. Quentin Canal Tunnel, inclusive, and will be detailed to mop-up the St. Quentin Canal and approaches thereto and the Sunken Road in A. 27 and G. 4.

One Platoon of the M. G. Co., will report to and be at the disposal of each Battalion Commander.

One 37 M. M. Gun will report to and be at the disposal of each Battalion Commander.

The Stokes Mortar will move in advance of the Support Battalion and assist in dealing with the situations that may arise and assist in the defense of the objective.

Dressing stations will be established under direction of the Regimental Surgeon who will report their locations to the units concerned.

(b) Supporting Troops:

1. Artillery:

There will be a preliminary bombardment by nine (9) F. A. Brigades and about five (5) Heavy Artillery Brigades, for a considerable period for the purpose of completing the enemy's demoralization and destroying his defenses. The Artillery will support the Infantry attack with a creeping barrage, including a considerable proportion of smoke shells (details of Artillery plan, time table, etc., will be issued later).

2. Tanks:

The Infantry will be proceeded by 12 tanks from the Fourth Tank Brigade. Battalion Commanders will furnish guides to conduct the Tanks from their forming up place to the Infantry Departure tape as already arranged. Battalion Commanders are responsible that these approaches be taped on the night of Day D-1 in sufficient time to permit the approach of the tanks.

3. Contact Infantry Aeroplanes will be available for communication from ground to Aeroplane. Flares and disk will be displayed only by front line troops when called for by these planes, when a Klaxon horn is sounded or a white, very Light is fired.

4. All Machine Guns of the Division (less Regimental M. G. Co.'s), will assist the advance by thickening the Artillery barrage.

(c) 1. The entire 60th Brigade will attack at H. Hour on D. Day. Distance between units to be gained while advancing. The right flank of the Brigade will be protected by an Artillery Smoke Screen.

2. Mopping up:

Mopping up will be done in accordance with map furnished the Battalion Commanders by Regimental Headquarters. Battalion Commanders will see that moppers up wear a distinctive mark, and that mopping up arrangements are worked out with the utmost care and detail. Special attention is called to the report on the St. Quentin Canal furnished the Battalion Commanders by Regimental Headquarters. Battalion Commanders will insure that definite bodies are allotted for duty at each entrance and exit to the tunnel, and that extra parties are detailed to search unknown entrances and exits. These troops must on no account be withdrawn from their task until their work is completely accomplished and will only be withdrawn upon the authority of an officer or Platoon Commander. A full supply of smoke bombs and grenades will be carried by moppers up.

3. (a) Formation for the attack.

Troops will assemble by 4:30 a. m., on the Tape line which is to be held by Engineers. Battalion Commander will insure that sufficient tape is laid running to the trenches to facilitate the forming of troops. The forming up of troops will be completed as quietly and quickly as possible and all troops will be massed on the tape as closely as possible in order to avoid the enemy barrage.

(b) Lifts of Artillery Barrage:

Barrage will lift at the following rates: 100 yards in three (3) minutes for the first 600 yards, thereafter 100 yards in four (4) minutes. On the barrage reaching 500 yards East of the St.

Quentin Canal it becomes stationary for fifteen minutes, after which it resumes this advance at the rate of 100 yards every four (4) minutes.

- (c) Tanks accompanying the Infantry will follow the barrage at approximately seventy (70) yards. The first wave will follow the tanks at approximately seventy (70) yards, action of tanks accompanying supporting troops will be dictated by the situation.
 - (d) Battalion Commanders will insure that specially selected men are employed on the flanks to maintain direction with the aid of prismatic compasses.
 - (e) The success signal will be a No. 23 Rifle Grenade bursting into three white lights.
4. (a) Care will be taken that signal is not fired until objective is reached.
 - (b) Under cover of the protective barrage, patrols will be sent forward and the positions prepared for defense.
 5. Upon occupation of the line, immediate steps will be taken to establish liaison with flank units and maintain same throughout the operation.
 6. Posts of Command before attack:

60th Infantry Brigade.....	L. 10. a. 1. 4.
119th Infantry.....	L. 5. d. 5. 9.
120th Infantry.....	L. 23. b. 7. 6.
 7. Watches of Battalion Headquarters will be synchronized under Regimental arrangements and of Companies under Battalion arrangements.
 8. Second phase of the attack:

The 5th Australian Division with its own Artillery and tanks will pass through the 60th Brigade after the 60th Brigade has attained its objective. After the whole Australian Division, including its reserves has passed through, the 60th Brigade will be re-assembled. Time and place will be notified later.
 9. Communication Supply and Evacuation, as prescribed by the 30th Division orders regulating road movements and traffic control will be strictly observed.
 10. General Remarks:
 - (a) When barrage halts on Canal for 15 minutes, every opportunity will be taken to re-organize units preparatory to resuming the advance.
 - (b) Ammunition, water, and tools can be obtained from Regimental Ammunition Dump at L. 10. a. 1. 7.
 - (c) All means and methods of communication will be employed to keep Regimental Headquarters informed of the situation, especially the location of the front line.
 - (d) There must be no doubt as final objective being reached.

J. VAN B. METTS.

HINDENBURG LINE.

To fully appreciate the importance of this operation it is here deemed necessary to explain somewhat in detail the magnitude of the undertaking. The Hindenburg Line so called because relied upon and established by the German General Von Hindenburg, was the last organized system of trenches to stop an Allied advance. So well was this system of trenches organized and so much faith pinned upon its impregnability, that a break through meant not only the destruction of the back-bone of the German defense system, but also the morale of the German Army. Another fact of extreme importance was that once the Allied Armies had penetrated the German line at this point, the enemy's army in Flanders would be completely bottled up with no means of escape. The attack was to take place on a Three Corps Front, with the Second American Corps, composed of the 27th and 30th Divisions in the Center, attacking opposite Bony and Bellicourt, the strongest point in the line.

"The Hindenburg Line at this point curves in front of the tunnel of St. Quentin. . . The line curving west of the tunnel consists of three main trench systems protected by vast fields of heavy barbed wire entanglements skillfully placed; this wire was very heavy and had been damaged very little by Artillery fire. The dominating ground enabled the enemy to bring devastating machine gun fire on all approaches. The lines had been strenghtened with concrete machine gun emplacements. It contained at this point a large number of dugouts lined with mining timbers, with wooden steps leading down to a depth of about thirty feet with small rooms capable of holding from four to six men each. In many cases these dugouts were wired for electric lights. The large tunnel through which the Canal ran was of sufficient capacity to shelter a Division. This tunnel was electrically lighted and filled with barges on which the Boche lived connecting it with the Hindenburg Trench System and numerous tunnels. In one case a direct tunnel ran from the main tunnel to the basement of a large stone building which the enemy used for headquarters. Other tunnels ran from the main tunnel eastward to the city of Bellicourt and other places. This complete subterranean system, with its hidden exits and entrances, unknown to us formed a most complete and safe subterranean method of communication and re-enforcement for the German sector."

ATTACK ON HINDENBURG LINE.

The Regiment completed its formation on the tape by 4:30 a. m., Sunday, September 29th, 1918, and waited quietly the zero hour. At exactly 5:50 a. m., the most terrific barrage ever laid down on the Western Front opened and the Infantry following it as closely as possible, assisted by such a density of fog and smoke that a person could not be seen at a distance greater than five yards, succeeded in making its way through the strong fortifications assisting the 120th Infantry in the capture of the town of Bellicourt and the St. Quentin Canal, pushing forward towards its objective. The fog and smoke caused quite a bit of confusion. No one, except with the aid of a compass, could keep the proper direction, consequently the Companies became very much mixed and scattered, a situation which might have been more serious but for the work of the officers, the training of the men and the utter rout of the enemy.

Some units of the Regiment reached the final objective on the left but these were captured by the enemy as soon as they saw the gap in the line caused by the failure of the 27th Division to keep up with the advance. Because of this gap the Regimental left necessarily had to conform in order to prevent a retaking of the ground gained by a counter-attack. During the time that this left flank was exposed the Regiment suffered a loss by capture of three officers and several enlisted men and a great number killed and wounded.

A short time after the zero hour, prisoners were started to the rear and the road from Hargicourt to Bellicourt was practically filled with them during the entire day. These prisoners seemed overjoyed at the fact of their capture, especially by an American Unit. Quite a number of these were interviewed and readily gave any information desired.

Owing to the magnitude of the offensive, it was deemed necessary as a precautionary measure to further protect the left flank which had suffered so heavily during the engagement, against a possible counter-attack by the enemy. For this purpose one Battalion of the 118th Infantry was sent to the Regimental Commander to be used as he deemed necessary. He in turn sent the Battalion forward to occupy a trench which ran from the Canal in a westerly direction. This Battalion completed the occupation at about 12:30 a. m., the morning of September 30th, 1918. The counter-attack never materialized.

Upon information gained from a German Battalion Commander interviewed at Regimental Headquarters, it was learned that when the enemy realized that the Americans had broken through their wire and first defenses, they withdrew the bulk of their reserves from the tunnel and reserve trenches, with the idea of making a stand at a position further to their rear. However, finding that the Division (27th American) on the left of the Regimental sector had failed to keep up with the advance and that the Regimental left flank was exposed, pushed additional troops in on the left. This move on the part of the enemy developed for the 119th Infantry Regiment, as it may be termed, a second battle for the day, on the then exposed left flank, between our advance line and the right flank of the 27th Division.

According to the scheme of attack, the Fifth Australian Division was to pass through the Regiment upon its reaching its final objective. Since the final objective was not reached, and since such a critical situation presented itself on the left flank, the Australians came into the line during the afternoon of September the 29th, and occupied the front line trenches along with the men of this Regiment, and it was not until the morning of the 30th, that they were able to make an advance. About the same time the Australians began their advance, orders were received to assemble the Regiment preparatory to withdrawal from the line for rest. It may be noticed that many of our men advanced with the Australians and had to be ordered to assemble in order that they might be relieved with the Regiment. The entire day of September 30th was consumed with a re-organization of the Regiment and the consolidation of the occupied position. Scouting parties were detailed to search every trench and dugout for the dead and wounded, numbers were found. Captured material was collected and placed along the road leading to Bellicourt. During the engagement, the Regiment suffered losses as follows:

	Officers	Men
Killed.....	146
Wounded.....	9	682
Died of Wounds.....	1	15
Prisoners.....	4	33
Missing.....	12

The field over which this fight took place, on the 30th day of September, presented a miserable appearance, as dead soldiers were scattered broadcast over its area. Shell holes were so numerous that one could not walk three steps without falling into one. Huge masses of barbed wire had been partly cut by the bombardment and the Tanks. Not a telephone pole nor a tree had been left standing by the sweeping Artillery fire. The town of Bellicourt was a complete wreck.

"WITHDRAWAL."

On the night of October 1st and 2nd, the Regiment withdrew to the location previously occupied by it in the Tincourt Area, and in compliance with orders on the morning of October 2nd, marched to the Herbecourt Area by the route of Tincourt-Monrouge-Peronne-Biaches, and went into camp shortly after noon the same day at a place, formerly the village of Biaches, now completely destroyed. This camp was on the Marne River and only a short distance west of Peronne.

The time here was occupied principally by resting, and a general policing of the personnel in the Regiment. The men enjoyed these two days of rest.

On October 5th, the Regiment marched back to the Tincourt Area and camped that night in Tincourt Wood. The following day orders were received to move up to the Bellicourt-Hargécourt Area and the night of the 6th and 7th of October, was spent camped in the trenches of the Hindenburg Line, which eight days previous were occupied by the Germans.

On October 7th, the march was continued to the town of Estrees where the Regiment halted for the night.

The night or the portion of night spent here was marked by a most terrific bombardment from the air. No casualties in the Regiment, however, resulted from this attack. Shortly after midnight verbal orders were received from the Commanding General, 60th Brigade, by the Commanding Officer of the Regiment to proceed to the vicinity of Premont and follow the attack of the 117th Infantry which would begin at 6:00 a. m., October 8th, passing through or "leap-frogging" the 117th at the railroad fill immediately west of Busigny.

"ATTACK OF OCTOBER 8th, 9th, AND 10th."

Leaving Estrees at approximately 3:30 a. m., the Regiment proceeded by marching to Premont and to its position, arriving there just as the barrage opened. Immediately it formed up in the following order: 2nd Battalion under command of Capt. Graham K. Hobbs, with "C" and "E" assaulting Companies and "G" and "H" the two supporting Companies occupied the left Regimental sector. The 3rd Battalion under command of Major William S. Privott and in the same formation with "K" and "M" Companies as the assaulting Companies and "I" and "L" Companies supporting, occupied the right Regimental sector. The 1st Battalion under command of Capt. Robert J. Lamb, was in support with Company "C" supporting 3rd Battalion and Company "D" supporting 2nd Battalion. Companies "A" and "B" were in reserve. The Regiment joined the 25th British Division on the left and the 120th Infantry Regiment on the right. Regimental Headquarters were established at Van le Prettre Farm. In this formation the line advanced approximately 1,500½ yards, on being held up here immediately west of the woods east of Premont, the 119th Infantry Regiment pushed through and continued the advance to its objective a short distance north-east of the town of Busigny, capturing the town and a large quantity of material, including a Battery of 5.9's and several field pieces, also liberating 1,800 French civilians who had been under control of the Germans for the four years of the war. Upon the entrance of the Americans into the village and before the Germans had been driven entirely out, the civilians were in the streets offering the soldiers hot coffee. They could not be too kind to their liberators. It seemed to surprise them greatly that the troops occupying their town then were friendly Americans. They thought that the British had freed them and it was sometime before they could believe the truth.

At about 4:30 the same afternoon the Regiment gained all of its objectives and immediately consolidated its position. Regimental Headquarters moved from Van le Prettre to Premont. This advancement was of 6 kilometers.

The attack order for the advance on the morning of October 9th, was received at Regimental Headquarters about 3:30 a. m., and transmitted to the Battalion Commanders and front line troops by 4:30 a. m. A runner was the only means of communication at this time. In the attack order the barrage was timed to open at 5:00 o'clock, but later was changed to begin at 5:30, and, had it not been for the fact that the attack orders were late in arriving at the front line, this difference of 30 minutes might have caused disastrous results.

The Regiment in the same formation as the previous day resumed the attack at 5:30 a. m., October 9th, with objective the Heights 500 yards east of the LaSalle River. This objective was selected for its tactical advantage, as it gave the enemy a dominating view of the country west of the LaSalle River, and from information gained seemed to be very strongly fortified.

The advance continued without meeting very strong resistance until the town of St. Souplet on the west bank of the LaSalle River was reached; about 3:00 o'clock that afternoon.

Here the enemy apparently had time to make some preparation and to bring up a few reserves, as the Heights immediately east of the River were well protected. Heavy Machine Gun and Artillery fire was received from the entire ridge covering the Regimental front. It was practically impossible to advance up this open incline without the sacrifice of a great number of lives. Repeated efforts were made to cross the River, and at a few points were successful but due to the nature of the terrain and the terrific Machine Gun fire, it was deemed necessary to dig in and hold the line along the west bank of the River, as a counter-attack was anticipated, but never materialized. The left flank of the Regiment at this time was connected with the 25th British Division but the right flank was exposed as the 120th Infantry had not kept up, causing the line to bend back in front of several fortified Machine Gun posts.

Confronting these conditions, the line was ordered to halt and make good a general line along the west bank of the LaSalle River and gain contact with the 120th Infantry, which was done later that night. During the day's operation the Regiment advanced to a distance of 4,000 yards and captured the towns of Escaufort, St. Souplet and St. Benin, liberating 706 French civilians. A large number of Machine Guns and several field pieces were captured with a large supply of ammunition.

That afternoon about 2:30 o'clock Regimental Headquarters moved from Premont to Busigny.

The night of the 9th-10th of October was spent in consolidating the captured position and to gain contact with the unit on the right which had been held up by Machine Gun fire. It was the plan that as soon as this connection had been made an Artillery Barrage was to be laid down on the whole front thus enabling the entire line to advance. The German position could not be taken without this preliminary preparation by the Artillery so strongly was it defended.

On the morning of October 10th, since the 120th Infantry had not come up on the line, the plan of the attack was not enforced but instead the Regiment merely exploited a short distance immediately forward of this position. After the hard fighting of the 8th and 9th, the men were completely worn out and ready for a rest. However, their high standard of morale had never waned. On the afternoon of the 10th, orders were received for the relief of the Regiment by the 108th Infantry Regiment of the 27th American Division. This relief, due to the fact that some of the units of the 108th Infantry became separated from the rest of the organization, was not completed until after daylight on the morning of the 11th of October. The troops moving from the front line positions could plainly be seen by the enemy who immediately fired on them with Artillery. The Regiment moved by marching back to Premont, where it remained until the same afternoon when it marched to the area around Van le Prettre Farm. Here it was billeted for the night of October 11th-12th. Due to a mistake, the allotment of billeting area by Corps Headquarters, the Regiment was compelled to move to the area surrounding Montbrohain, while Regimental Headquarters was established in the village.

In this area every advantage was taken to rest the men and to let them clean their clothing and equipment. A captured German bathhouse was utilized and every man in the Regiment was thus enabled to get a good hot shower bath. The Regiment remained here for five days.

"ATTACK OF OCTOBER 17th, 18th, AND 19th."

On the afternoon of the 16th of October, in accordance with instructions the Regiment moved to the woods immediately southwest of Busigny, where it bivouacked for the night of the 16-17th. Regimental Headquarters was established in the village. Before daybreak the morning of the 17th, in accordance with battle instructions, Headquarters 30th Division, the troops of the Regiment marched to its forming up area along a general line, eastern outskirts of La Haie Mennerese and bore on Vaux Andigny, arriving there at 5:00 a. m., zero hour. From this point, the Regiment was to follow the advance of the 59th Brigade under an Artillery Barrage, passing through it at zero plus six hours. The following disposition of troops was made: The 1st Battalion commanded by Capt. Robert J. Lamb on the left of the Regimental sector with "A" and "B" Companies assaulting, "C" Company in close support and "D" Company in support. 2nd Battalion commanded by Major Graham K. Hobbs on the right Regimental sector with "E" and "H" Companies assaulting, "H" Company in close support and "G" Company in support. The 3rd Battalion commanded by Major John Hall Manning, was in support. The Regiment was joined on the left flank by the 120th Infantry and on the right by the 1st British Division of the 9th British Corps. While following up the 59th Brigade, the Regiment passed through an extremely heavy counter barrage of the enemy.

At approximately 11:00 o'clock in the morning, the 119th Infantry Regiment took over the line from the 117th Infantry as it was held up by Machine Gun fire, and advanced to a railroad cut 2,000 yards west of the village of Ribeauville. Here the position was consolidated and the men dug in for the night. This position was very heavily shelled and quite a number of casualties resulted. The command of the sector officially passed from the Commanding General, 59th Brigade, to the Commanding General, 60th Brigade, at sundown the same evening. With the passing of the command the 59th Brigade supported the 60th Brigade in its advance.

Due to the fact that the British on the right and the 120th on the left had been unable to keep up with the advance and gain connection, the attack on the morning of the 18th inst., could not be made. During the entire morning harassing Machine Gun fire was distributed over the Regimental front. About 11:30 a. m., the British by aid of Artillery Barrage succeeded in advancing until connection had been established with the 119th Infantry. At the time connection was made with the British, the 119th Infantry attempted to advance on the town of Ribeauville, but this advance was met by such heavy Machine Gun fire that the right Battalion had to fall back to its original position. Practically no advance had been made by this Regiment up to 5:00 o'clock that afternoon, nor by the units on either flank.

About 7:30 o'clock information was received that the British on the right had moved up to the prolongation of our front line, and were continuing the advance. Information was also received that the 27th Division (American) had succeeded in pushing its line forward.

At 8:00 o'clock that evening orders were received from Commanding General, 60th Brigade, to the effect that the 119th Infantry would advance immediately, keeping liaison with units on right and left. The attack formation consisted principally of Combat Groups and Patrols joined by connecting files, which pushed out and continued the advance over very rough country, assisted only by the dim moonlight and compass. Owing to these conditions, very slow progress was made, as it was very hard to maintain connections.

Very little Machine Gun and Artillery fire was encountered until the line reached the eastern edge of Ribeauville, where shelling became heavier, and a great number of Mustard Gas shells were falling in the area.

The line continued to advance to the village of Ecaillon, which was reached about 1:30 a. m., October 19th. Orders were received to halt and secure connection with units on right and left, which was done. That night the town of Ribeauville was captured liberating one French civilian, and at Ecaillon five horses were captured in a stable with saddle equipment and harness.

About 3:30 that morning orders were received that the attack would resume at 7:00 o'clock on the entire Corps front, and to continue the advance as far as possible, no objective being given. The Regiment in practically the same formation as the previous day formed up and advanced in the general direction of Catillon, maintaining connection on its flanks. At 8:30 the town of Mazingheim was captured by 119th which continued to advance, until it had reached the high ground east of Mazingheim overlooking the Sombre Canal. Here very stout Machine Gun opposition was met, and the line held up for awhile. Supporting Machine Guns, Stokes Mortars, and One Pounders were sent up to protect the front from any counter-attack and did good work in putting out several enemy Machine Gun posts. Practically no advance was made beyond this high ground that afternoon, due to the very open country and the deadly fire from the German Machine Guns.

Orders were received to halt and make good the line held. The men and officers were now, after a period of three days' continuous fighting, very, very tired, having advanced a distance of practically five miles.

That night the Regiment was relieved by the British and the Regiment retired to the town of St. Souplet where it was billeted the night of October 19th-20th. The following morning the Regiment moved by marching to Busigny, and October 21st marched to Joncourt. The march continued October 22nd, and that afternoon the Regiment was camped in small huts immediately west of Tincourt. October 23rd, the entire Regiment moved by rail from Tincourt to Heilly and marched from there to Contay Area near Amiens, where the units were billeted in the following towns: 1st Battalion at Contay; 2nd Battalion and 3rd Battalion at Behincourt; Headquarters Company at Baolincourt; Machine Gun Company at Contay; Supply Company at Hahoussoy; Regimental Headquarters at Esbart Chateau.

"REST AND TRAINING."

Upon the arrival of the Regiment in this area, every advantage was taken to give the men a thorough rest and also to equip them. The depleted ranks had to be filled by replacements, for the Regiment was in strength, a little larger than that of one Battalion. The Commanding Officer expressing the wish of all the officers and men of the Regiment, exerted every effort to have the old men of the Regiment who had been pronounced ready for duty from hospitals, returned to the organization. As a result of this effort quite a number of the old men were returned along with a few replacements to take the place of those killed and wounded. After the rest of a few days, a training schedule was inaugurated preparatory to fitting the organization for further fighting. Quite a number of maneuvers were included in the training schedule and the majority of them were carried out, assimilating open warfare.

Connected with the training a number of field meets were held, principally to relieve the men's minds from the battle front and to create a spirit of competition throughout the entire 2nd American Corps.

On or about November 17th, the 30th Division was relieved of further duty with the British Expeditionary Forces and transferred to the American Expeditionary Forces. With this transfer the Division was moved from its area near Amiens and sent further south with the Americans. On November 21st, 1918, this Regiment entrained at Corbie and moved by rail to the LaMans Area, detraining the following morning at Beaumont sur Sarthe. Regimental Headquarters, Headquarters Company, Machine Gun Company, Supply Company, 1st and 3rd Battalions, were billeted in the town, and the 2nd Battalion was billeted in the village of Vivian. This order was later changed, since the billeting space in Beaumont was entirely too crowded, and some of the organizations were moved into neighboring villages.

Training schedule was inaugurated here and the Regiment sustained its high standard by attaining a high degree of perfection in drill, ceremonies, training and equipment.

The citizens of Beaumont were most cordial to the Americans and exerted every effort towards their entertainment. The officers were extensively entertained in their homes. At a dinner given by the Mayor of the town, the Commanding Officer of the Regiment was presented with a "wreath of Laurel" in token of the splendid work of the Regiment during the fighting.

While in this area, a scheme of competition for the entire 2nd Corps was started. This scheme meant the selection of the best all round Regiment of each Division which were selected by means of competitive drills and inspection to determine the best Regiment of the entire Corps. The Corps meet was never held but this Regiment was selected by General Lewis to represent the 30th Division. General J. J. Pershing reviewed the Division while it was located in this area and later addressed the officers, expressing his appreciation for the work it had done while a member of the American Expeditionary Forces. A rating of the units of the Division was made by one of General Pershing's Staff Officers and shown to Colonel Herr, Chief of Staff, 30th Division. The 119th Infantry was rated number one in appearance, equipment and in marching in review.

"START FOR PORT."

On February 11, 1919, pursuant to orders, the Regiment proceeded by marching to the Forwarding Camps, five kilometers from LeMans, where it completed preparation before sailing, and on the twelfth and thirteenth days of March, proceeded to the Embarkation Camp at St. Nazaire, arriving March 13th and 14th. The Regiment remained at this camp for a period of three days, making its final preparations for embarkation to the United States of America.

On the 16th day of March, 1919, orders were received from Headquarters Embarkation Camp, Base Sector No. 1, St. Nazaire, France, to the effect that following units of the 119th Infantry would embark at 2:00 p. m., March 17th, on the U. S. S. "Madawaska".

Headquarters, 119th Infantry, Headquarters Company, Supply Company, and Ordnance Detachment, Machine Gun Company, 1st Battalion Headquarters, Companies A, B, C, and D, and Medical Detachment.

Following these units on March 21st, the 2nd and 3rd Battalion Headquarters, and Companies E, F, G, H, I, K, L, and M, embarked from St. Nazaire on the U. S. S. "Huron."

The trip over sea was very rough due to heavy wind and storms, thus causing the voyage to be several days longer than had been anticipated.

The entire Regiment landed at Charleston, S. C., on April 2nd, moving immediately by rail to Camp Jackson, S. C.

Here all the men in the Regiment from North Carolina, were mustered out of the service between the 6th and 10th, and those from Tennessee were sent to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., April 9th, to be mustered out there. The remaining men in the Regiment from other States were transferred as Camp Detachments and ordered to the nearest Demobilization Camp to their homes and discharged. The following Camp Detachments were sent from the Regiment:

Camp Dix, Dodge No. 1 and No. 2, Gordon, Grant No. 1 and No. 2, Lee, Funston, Pike, Sherman, Taylor and Upton.

Practically all officers took advantage of the fifteen-day leave in order to avail themselves of an opportunity to secure employment before being discharged from service.

Upon the completion of mustering out of the 119th Infantry, its Commanding Officer, having applied for service in the Regular Army, appeared before a board consisting of Regular Army officers and was recommended by said board. He was not, therefore, mustered out with the remainder of the officers.

While at Camp Jackson, upon request of the city of Columbia, the Regiment on April 5th, moved to that city by way of electric railway and paraded through the principal streets, receiving a joyous welcome "HOME".

LETTERS AND EXTRACTS

HEADQUARTERS 30TH DIVISION.
AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES.

March 11, 1919, France.

From: Major-General E. M. Lewis, Commanding 30th Div., A. E. F.
To: The Commanding Officer, 119th Infantry.
Subject: Service of the 119th Infantry.

1. While I have endeavored to express verbally to the officers my appreciation of their loyalty and service during the operations of the Division, I want you to take back with you this further testimony of my very great appreciation of the splendid record of the Regiment, as a whole, in the operations of the 30th Division. What has been accomplished by the Division is well known, and the 119th Infantry has had its full share in the accomplishment and can look back upon its experiences with nothing but pride, not only by its efficiency in the field, but also by its excellent discipline and military conduct, the 119th has always reflected credit upon the Division.

2. May all good things await you as individuals in just recompense for the great service done by you as an organization.

E. M. LEWIS,
Major-General, U. S. A.

JEFFERSON HOTEL,
Columbia, S. C., March 5, 1919.

DEAR METTS:

I cannot finally sever our close association during the past year without expressing to you my appreciation of the splendid efficiency of your command of the 119th Infantry, both in battle and in the trying period following the Armistice, when it sustained its high standard by attaining a high degree of perfection in drill, ceremonies, training and equipment.

I have never seen a finer regiment than the 119th Infantry when reviewed by General Pershing. The results attained were, in my estimation, due to your excellent judgment concerning the selection of your staff and to your refusal to retain any officer, regardless of personal feeling, unless he delivered the goods. Also to your happy faculty of inspiring your officers with real affection and securing absolute team work.

The spirit of your Regiment was always of the highest. Your cheerful attitude and spirit of enthusiasm and co-operation has ever been a satisfaction to us at Division Headquarters. You may well be proud of having developed one of the very best Regiments in the A. E. F.

With very best wishes for your success,

Cordially yours,

JOHN K. HERR,

Col. Chief of Staff, 30th Division.

HEADQUARTERS AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES.
G-2-E--Visitors' Bureau

Paris, 37 Rue Bassano, February 12, 1919.

MY DEAR COLONEL:

I understand that you are about to return to the United States soon with your Division. As you of course know, I have not had the pleasure of serving with you when you were in actual command of your Regiment, beyond spending a couple of days in your camp just as you were leaving in December, 1917. I did, however, have the privilege of commanding the 119th Infantry for several months during your temporary absence, and I can but believe that the excellent spirit and morale which existed in that Regiment was largely the result of your work. I have seen personally no regiment formed during the war where officers and men gave a better or more loyal response under rather difficult conditions of training. Of the Regiment's work on this side I know only through hearsay, but comment that I have heard from outside the Regiment and Division has been most favorable.

Very sincerely yours,

F. LEJ. PARKER,

Brig. Gen. U. S. A.

COL. JOHN VAN B. METTS,
119th Infantry, A. E. F.
APC 749.

October 2, 1919.

From a letter written by Col. S. L. Faison, formerly Commanding General, 60th Brigade:

4. "This Regiment became one of the most effective fighting units in the Division, and, in my judgment, one of the best regiments in France."

FROM MAJOR-GENERAL E. M. LEWIS TO COL. METTS, MARCH 24, 1920.

"The 119th Infantry was an unusually efficient infantry unit, which did its full share in the operations of the 30th Division, under my command."
